December 2011 Press Release

ALASA Academy Suspends 2012 Summer Day Camps

After an extremely successful 2011 Children's Summer Day Camp program, ALASA Academy finds it necessary to suspend the 2012 summer events. Founder and President, Sharon Maher, relayed that: "Due to health issues, financial needs and competing schedules, the current staff and board are unable to meet the demands of running a high quality program."

"We have worked extremely hard for the last two years to find qualified replacements and support to be able to continue or change the program and still offer the activities and quality of interactions that our campers have enjoyed and their families have come to expect. We will continue to explore options for the future of ALASA Academy. This has been a very tough decision to make, but it's time after seven wonderful summers to take a step back and make decisions that work for everyone involved. We will keep you informed as additional decisions are made and future direction becomes clear."

"ALASA Academy's commitment to children and nature has worked only because of the hundreds of individuals, organizations, companies, and political support that have been given so freely. Our thanks to everyone: including our ALASA Warriors who we will miss deeply this year, families and friends that we have met along the way, supporters and volunteers who have made our programs possible throughout the years and financial backing from everywhere that allowed us to grow and change for the betterment of our children."
